

By the King.

A Proclamation about the dissolving of the Parliament.

Hereas Wee, for the generall good of our Kingdome, caused Our High Court of Parliament to assemble and meete, by Prorogation the twentieth day of January last past, since which time the same hath bene continued: And although in this time, by the malevolent dispositions of some ill affected persons of the House of Commons, we have had sundry just causes of offence and dislike of their proceedings; yet wee resolved with patience to trie the bittermost, which wee the rather did, for that we found in that house a great number of sober and graue persons, well affected to Religion and gouernement, and desirous to preserve Unity and Peace in all parts of Our Kingdome. And therefore, hauing on the five and twentieth day of February last, by the vniforme aduice of Our Pruy Counsell, caused both Houses to be adiourned vntill this present day, hoping in the meane time, that a better and more right vnderstanding might bee begotten betweene Us and the members of that House, whereby this Parliament might haue a happy end and issue.

And for the same intent, we did againe this day command the like Adiournment to bee made, vntill the tenth day of this moneth: It hath so happened by the disobedient and seditious carriage of those said ill affected persons of the House of Commons, That we, and Our Regall authority and commandement, haue bene so highly contemned, as Our Kingly Office cannot beare, nor any former age can parallel. And therefore it is Our full, and absolute resolution, to dissolve the same Parliament; whereof wee thought good, to give notice vnto all the Lords Spirituall and Temporall, and to the Knights, Citizens, and Burgeses of this present Parliament, and to all others whom it may concerne, that they may depart about their needfull affaires, without attending any longer heere. Neuerthelesse, wee will that they, and all others should take notice, that we doe, and ever will distinguish betweene those, who haue shewed good affection to Religion and Gouernment, and those that haue given themselves ouer to Faction, and to worke disturbance to the peace, and good order of Our Kingdome.

Giuen at Our Court at VWhite-hall, This second day of March, in the fourth yeere of Our Reigne of great Britaine, France, and Ireland.

God saue the King.
